Senior Class History

If we considered our life in G. H. S. chronologically, we should begin with our first days as frightened seventh-graders in the Junior high school. Were we to begin with our outstanding successes, however, we should mention instantly our cooperation in helping Herb Lee produce a successful senior play just a few weeks ago. In this venture each senior as well as the senior advisers, Miss Imogene Riddick and Miss Evelyn Buchanan, worked as a unit to put over in a big way "Night Must Fall."

No success of the current school year 1940-1941 could be mentioned without some senior sharing the honor. Of course, this is as it should be! In the realm of scholastic activities, sports, music, dramatics, journalism, student government and other extra-curricular areas, the class of 1941 has excelled. Enthusiasm and intelligence have characterized the leadership of the senior class throughout the year.

As Juniors we selected Jane Harrison for president;

Fenner Corbett, vice-president; Evelyn Langley, secretary and Larry James, treasurer. With the able help of our Junior advisers, Miss Helen Dugan, Mr. Herman Dally and Mr. Judson White, we were able to give an outstanding Junior-Senior banquet-dance. Under Jane Harrison's supervision, the class participated for the first time in a magazine campaign, which boosted the junior funds considerably. As juniors we were well represented in all curricular and extra-curricular activities.

Marshals chosen from our class because of superior scholastic work were Betsy Hobgood and J. N. Williams, chief marshals; Jane Scoville, Anna Lee Register, Evelyn Langley, Mary Sue Moore, Jennie Joyner, Fenner Corbett, Bernice Jenkins, J. Hicks Corey, and Herbert Lee.

Chosen early this year as senior class officers were Bruce Mayo, president; Jane Scoville, vice-president; Frances Willard, secretary; and Betty Tyson, treasurer. Besides sponsoring the senior play the class of 1941 also presented the annual Christmas program and arranged for Christmas gifts for several needy families.

Urging that some sort of school expansion program be started soon is the whole-hearted idea of Superintendent J. H. Rose. During the twenty years which Mr. Rose has been superintendent of the Greenville City Schools, students, coming and going, have looked upon him as their leader, one who has endeavored to make their school life profitable and enjoyable.

Here's to Colonel Flanagan, as the students know him, the new chairman of the school board. He has constantly shown his willingness and desire to better the schools of Greenville. "Colonel" has proved, in all his efforts, to be a worth-while friend of all students.

Congratulations to Mr. J. L. Little, who is now serving his thirty-fourth year on the Greenville school board. For twenty-two years Mr. Little served faithfully as chairman of the board. During this year he was succeeded by Mr. E. G. Flanagan. Under Mr. Little's chairmanship outstanding progress has been made in the Greenville schools.

B. B. Sugg, mayor of Greenville, who has always shown utmost interest in the students of Greenville high school. It is the hope of Mayor Sugg that some sort of school expansion program may be offered the students of Greenville in the near future, so that students will have the needed conveniences in continuing their education.

Student Cooperative Association

Miss Evelyn Buchanan
Faculty Adviser

Evelyn Buchanan

The Student Cooperative association under the leadership of President Fenner Corbett is completing one of the most successful years in its history. Student interests centered around three presidential elections held during the school year by a unique coincidence.

The council program began with spirited elections in the fall in which Fenner Corbett was the successful candidate for president. Other officers elected at this time were Betsy Hobgood, vice-president; Rachel Fleming, secretary and Bill Turner, treasurer.

The second big event of the year was the North Carolina State Student Council Congress held here November 1, 1940. The convention was attended by almost three hundred students from thirty high schools. Panel discussions on student government problems highlighted the program. Of greatest interest to Greenville high students was the campaign and election of Jack Edwards, a local junior, to the office of president of the state congress.

The local students aided in the campaign by talking with the various delegates who were housed in homes throughout the city.

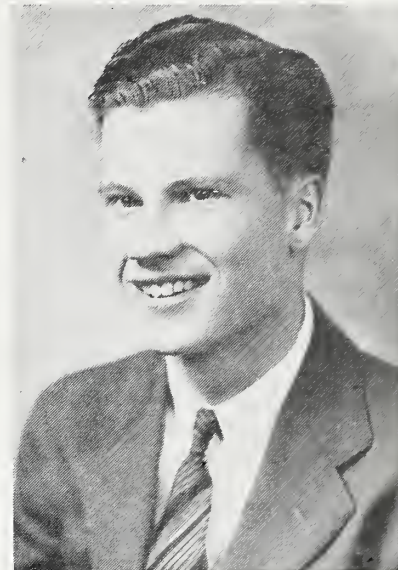

A camera was purchased for the use of school organizations after several weeks discussion. The council formed a photography club to supervise and train students in the operation of the new camera.

Twice during the school year the council waged campaigns to solicit donations for relief funds. The "Bundles for Britain" drive was conducted just before Christmas netting $21.58. It had as its theme the sacrificing of money ordinarily spent for fireworks to aid British children escape explosives falling from the skies. The second drive, a campaign for aid to crippled children, was staged before Easter.

The council spent much time during the year in an effort to improve the method of distributing profits of the student store, because of numerous protests concerning the methods now in use. Several new plans were presented.

Early spring was chosen by the student body as the time to elect council officers following an open forum in which plans for fall and mid-year elections were also considered. An amendment changing the elections date was passed resulting in elections this spring for the first time in G. H. S. history.

After a short but spirited campaign Richard Duncan won out in the race for SCA president over Bill Turner and James Worsley. Bill Horne defeated Jack Edwards by a slight majority in a run-off for the vice-presidential post. Other successful candidates were Louis DuPree, secretary and Eustace Conway, treasurer. The officers-elect will take over their new duties next September.

Junior Class History

The Junior class of 1941, composed of one hundred students, has been outstanding this year in music, athletics, dramatics and various other school activities.

Early in the year the class chose H. R. Goodall, president; Jack Edwards, vice-president; Martha Rowe, secretary; and Doris Broadhurst, treasurer.

Under their leadership the juniors have sponsored a magazine campaign, a carnival and four dances.

The proceeds from these activities were used in staging the annual Junior-Senior. The affair proved to be an outstanding social event of the school year.

Wake Up and Live! It's 1973

Scene: A trench on the European front. Or, are there trenches today?

Time: June 3, 1943.

Bam, tat! tat!—Boom, boom.

Silence

Two small voices speak.

Me: Ahem, certainly is quiet tonight, isn't it?

You: Yeah—Remember how noisy it was two years ago with all our mothers weeping at graduation from dear ole' G. H. S.? Brings tears into my eyes - - - sniff, sniff. (S-S-S-S Balamalam! From some where close by) Oh! They got me. I always knew they would get me in - - - in the end. (Plop)

Me: Poor fellow - - - ho hum - -Oh, look! there goes Nina Redditt, slipping through the bobwire in the middle of no man's land - - - - and she was the best sabotage agent we had, too. (S-S-S-S-Balamalamatam! Dead Silence.)

April 5, 1973—Thirty Years Later.

A recent article appearing in the "New York Times," now edited by Bernice Jenkins, reads as follows: "Four great scientists, Jesse Ray Howard, Joe Broadhurst, Billy Gulley and Bruce Thigpen, while piddling around among the last war's ruins, discovered two human beings who had been entrenched there for the past thirty years. Evidently, they were the only victims of suspension gas, a type of gas which induces its victims into a sleeping coma. The scientists developed an antidote for the gas and brought the two victims back to their limited senses."

Scientist I: Wake up and live; it's 1973.

You: I can't believe it's 1973. What's happened?

Me: Me, either Let's make a trip around the world to visit our classmates of 1941.

Personal Diary

April 7. Stopped in New York tonight. Attended Herb Lee's newest hit, "Marshmallows and Cream Puffs," starring Wilma Cozart and Edmund Boyd.

After the play we stopped to dance at the "Greasy Quarter" night club, managed by Travis Flanagan. The floor show was wonderful, the main attraction being "St. Louis Blues," blued by none other than our old classmate, Jennie C. Joyner. Also working with Travis were flower girls, Marguerite Hudson, Margaret Nelson and Doris Nelson

April 8. We took a train to Chicago. Had a very nice trip. Traveled with J. N. Williams, famous pianist who had just finished a concert at Carnegie Hall. He told us that he saw a lot of John Horne while on tour, since John was a conductor for the Union Pacific Railroad Co.

April 9. While strolling along the sidewalks of Chicago, we noticed a new 150-storey building under construction. We heard a voice bawling orders to some of the workmen, who turned out to be none other than Paul Scott, Dewey Page and Ollie Clark. We glanced around frantically to see who was making so much fuss. Looking upward, we discovered it was Snag Clark, evidently the foreman on the job, perched on the top storey. After greeting these boys, we asked if they knew where any more of our former classmates were located. They told us that J. Hicks Corey was still the street-cleaner on their shift, and had been for twenty-five years. We were somewhat astounded at this, but they assured us that Hicks had told them confidentially that he was in line for promotion.

April 10. Early this morning we purchased a 1973 rocket-ship from high-pressure salesman, Fenner Corbett.

At noon we rocketed to Miami to get a little sun tan before we journeyed to the Arctic. Just as we stepped from our ship we bumped into what seemed to be a familiar figure. However, because of his extremely bald head, it took us a few minutes to recognize our old friend, Burney Warren, peddling "Pink Pills for Pale People."

Seeing a mob further down the beach we thought maybe somebody was drowned. However, we were mistaken; it was a bathing-beauty contest. Among the beauties we found Lib Wells, Frances Willard, Louise Wooten and Doris Roberts.

April 11. Since it was rather chilly in Florida, we decided to look up a few of our old friends in Hawaii. Then, too, we wanted some fresh pineapple juice in addition to a little warmth. Arriving there just in time for lunch, we found Dr. Sidney Johnson resting on his pineapple plantation. Dr. Johnson seems to be making a prosperous living replacing the hips of amateur hula dancers. He spends his evenings trying to teach the natives "La Conga."

While in Hawaii we went to a woman's wrestling match in which Jane Scoville, top woman wrestler of the world, successfully defended her championship. What a strong constitution after all these years! Her opponent turned out to be Emmie Lou White. We were surprised to see Ann Gaskins and Lib Sugg there. They informed us that they were now teachers, enjoying the vacation for which they have been saving for twenty years.

April 12. Hopping off to the Arctic coast after our warm stay in Hawaii, we arrived simultaneously with Betsy Hobgood, Lucy Churchill and Mary Sue Moore, who told us they were going to take a census of Eskimos who are total vegetarians. They were agents from the Jean Rush canning corporation. We found George Saad working furiously on an editorial criticizing the workers on the C. B. Rowlette Eskimo Pie plantations who were on strike for more blubber. The editorial was for editor Saad's paper, the "Ice Review."

April 13. Left early for Bermuda. Had a wonderful visit at the estate of Peggy West, wife of the governor of the island. On the beach we saw a group of girls whom we recognized to be Joy Flanagan, Ruby Taylor, Betty Tyson and Jane Harrison. It was puzzling to us how they had kept their youth. They didn't look a day over eighteen. However, on inquiring, we discovered that those weren't our classmates at all, but were their daughters. We found the girls' mothers playing bridge at the casino, while their fathers, Larry James, John Collins, J. B. Kitrell and Edgar Denton indulged in a game of billiards. The four families had chipped in and rented a cottage for the summer. All four boys are making good. Larry is owner of a tobacco factory; John is making good in the furniture business; J. B. has a monopoly on the sugar business; and Edgar owns the famous chain stores, Belk-Denton.

We left for Hollywood soon after dinner and got there about bed time. We made reservations in the Hotel Swank, jointly owned by Susie Warren and Edna Earle Whichard.

April 14. We found Naomi Overton, Anna Lee Register and Vera Dare Stocks working in the hotel's beauty parlor as manicurists. Each girl was confident that she would get a break in the movies, soon.

At the studio we found Betsy Hobgood taking the lead in a heavy drama, "The Slippery Soup." On another set we found Frances Swindell, Lillian James, Lila Lee Everington and Helen Butler in the chorus of a musical comedy entitled, "That Night On The Iceberg."

April 15. Left for our old home today. Stopped in New Orleans, where we found Mamie Ruth Gilbert, president of the Southern Bird Association, working diligently on a paper she was preparing for the "Southern Weekly Post," edited by Edna Ross and Staley Smith. Mamie Ruth told us that Audrey Lum and Ann McCormick were co-owners of a large chain of dress shops in the South and that Doris H. Brown and Evelyn Langley were very active in politics.

April 16. Our next stop was Louisville, Kentucky, where we found Bruce Mayo owner of a large Television company. Bruce said that Gloria Whitehurst was the owner of a long string of race horses and that she had a sure winner for the Kentucky Derby.

Lila Mae Allen and Annie Lee Baker, we learned, were librarians in the city library. We went to Richmond, Virginia, where we found J. B. Joyner, owner of a large rocket-motor parts concern. He told us that he had three of our old school-mates, Theima House, Viola Bailey and Doris Brown employed as stenographers in his offices.

We learned that Doris Briley, Frances Dunn and Lucille Edwards were nurses in one of the larger hospitals of the city, while Blanche Hardee was the manager of a poultry farm on the outskirts of the city.

April 17. On the last lap of our trip we stopped for a couple of days at Jody Flanagan's beautiful estate, which is located in the mountains of North Carolina. Jody is writing another book, "Two Slickers in the Hills." We hope it is as big a hit as her last one, "Mountaineer in Captivity."

April 18: Arrived Greenville. Went immediately to see the old school building; but alas, in its place we found a ten-storey super-construction with an indoor swimming pool and tennis courts. Our dream came true after all!

Note: Any discrepancies as to time and place in the above article may be attributed to the prevalence of rocket ships in 1973 and to the mental condition of the author when this article was written.

Tenth-Grade Class History

One hundred and twenty-one versatile students compose this year's tenth-grade class. Active in scouting, dramatics, sports, journalism and many other organizations are the students under the homeroom supervision of Miss Deanie B. Haskett, Mr. Boley Farley, Miss Cooper Bell and Mr. H. H. Cunningham. This year the students have participated in many extra-curricular activities, such as, the International Correspondence Club, the French Club, the Home Economics Club and Debating. Though the tenth-grade has had no formal organization, its active students have been of definite value to the school throughout the year.

Ninth-Grade Class History

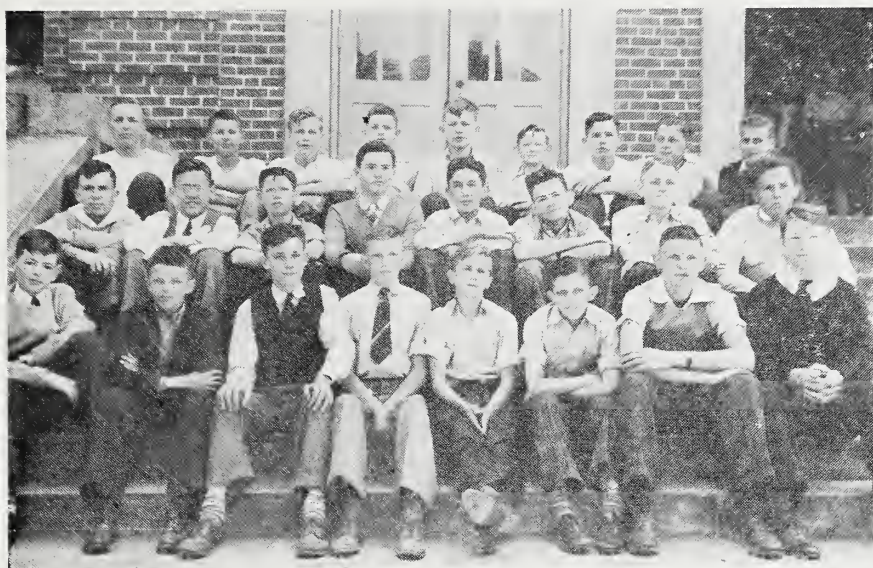

One hundred and thirty-five students make up the ninth grade this year. The students are active in dramatics, junior journalism, basketball, and other sports. Homeroom teachers R. G. Walser, Miss Shelby Mitcham, E. R. Robinson, and Mrs. Maude Bowen supervise the ninth-grade students.

Junior Hi-Lights, edited and published by students under the supervision of M. J. White, is headed by ninth-graders for the most part.

The Junior Dramateers, directed by R. G. Walser, have made many accomplishments this year. The group was organized last year by students in the ninth grade interested in dramatics.

This year the eighth-grade class contains one hundred sixteen students. The group has been supervised by Mr. Judson White, Miss Mary Shaw Robeson, Miss Estelle Greene and Mr. Heman Fulkerson. Many of the eighth graders have participated frequently throughout the year in such school activities as, football, track, junior high basketball, assembly programs, student council, traffic committee, cheer leading and the band. More and more the eighth graders are becoming aware of the part they are supposed to play in school life.

Class History

Two seventh-grade groups spent this year in Greenville High School under the supervision of Miss Virginia Boerger and Mrs. Paul Davenport. There are seventy-nine pupils in two crowded homerooms. The newcomers are more and more realizing that they have a part in the school life and are frequently participating in junior-high activities. Two seventh-grade groups are housed in other buildings this year; one group, in the Training School; another, in the Third Street School.

Math Club

The Greenville high school Math club, under the advisorship of Miss Evelyn Buchanan is going into its second year of successful existence.

This organization, established for the purpose of increasing student knowledge of mathematics, is becoming outstanding in the field of clubs and extra-curricular groups.

John Horne, superior student in Algebra, has been president for the current year. He was assisted by Jane Scoville, vice-president and Betsy Hobgood, secretary-treasurer.

Junior International Correspondence Club

Established last year as a junior division of the Senior International Correspondence club, the Junior I. C. club has twenty-two members. Mrs. C. A. Bowen has been the faculty adviser for the current year. Margaret Jones, a representative from the Senior I. C. group, has acted as the student adviser.

Meetings have been held every Monday and special programs have been presented at every other meeting. These programs have been similar to those of the senior organization. Officers for the year have been Peggy Rose Smith, president; Hennie R. Whichard, vice-president; Rena Oakes, secretary, and Margaret Jones, adviser.

International Correspondence Club

The International Correspondence club, organized three years ago, has progressed rapidly under the leadership of J. N. Williams as president and Faculty Adviser Deanie Boone Haskett.

The twenty-five members who make up this organization have as their purpose familiarizing themselves with foreign countries through correspondence, acquiring a wider knowledge of the culture and customs of other countries, as well as their geographical conditions, and aiding in the establishing of a closer relationship between America and its European and South American neighbors.

The club has its meetings every other Wednesday. During the year the club presented an outstanding radio program along with a number of superior club programs.

French Club

Under the supervision of Miss Imogene Riddick, faculty adviser, the French club has had a most successful year. The big feature, as always, of the French club was a French play, "Medecin Malgre Lui."

"The most outstanding work of this year's club was the giving of a real Moliere play, which is the nicest play ever given by the French club. Moliere's plays are usually produced by professional actors," states Miss Riddick.

Presiding over the Tuesday morning meetings have been Herbert Lee, president, and Doris Broadhurst secretary. The meetings have been both entertaining and educational. An annual event of the club is a picnic in the spring.

Radio Club

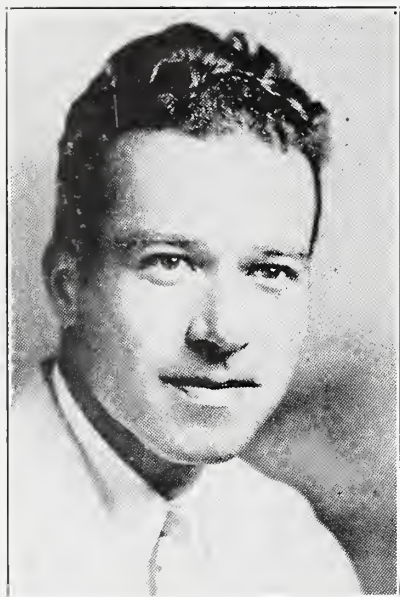

Under the leadership of Heber Adams, the Radio club has proved to be one of the most active and beneficial clubs in Greenville high school.

Among the activities of the club during the year was the assembly program explaining how radio amateurs operate. The building of a seventy-five watt phone transmitter was also explained.

The present membership of the radio club includes seven students. Bruce Mayo is vice-president; Carl Corey, secretary; James Mayo, treasurer; and Mr. E. R. Robinson, adviser.

Diversified Occupations

C. Wallace Bourne
Supervisor

Going into its second year of existence in G. H. S., Diversified Occupations, under the supervision of C. Wallace Bourne, made several outstanding achievements throughout the past school year.

Composed of fourteen seniors and six juniors, the class put over one of the best dances of the year on Valentine night. Besides the dance, they held their annual student-employer banquet early in May. This proved to be one of the most important school events of the year.

Two D. O. students, Paul Brooks and C. B. Rowlette, attended the state convention in Wilmington, April 28-29. These students were outstanding in deciding on the state D. O. pin and were the first to suggest it.

Throughout the year the class has operated as a club. Early in the current year they elected officers: Billy Gulley, president; Bernice Jenkins, vice-president; and Mary Sue Moore, secretary-treasurer.

Camera Club

The Camera club, which is the youngest organization in Greenville high school, has made rapid progress since it received its charter in January.

Credit is due Billy Gulley, president, for the existence of the club. Under his instructions, the Camera club studied many phases of photography. This group, although young, should prove to be one of the main organizations in the high school.

Red Cross

Under the supervision of Miss Margaret Zinn, the Red Cross club was organized in the fall of 1940. The club now has thirty members. Officers are Audrey Lum, president, and Queenie McGowan, secretary-treasurer.

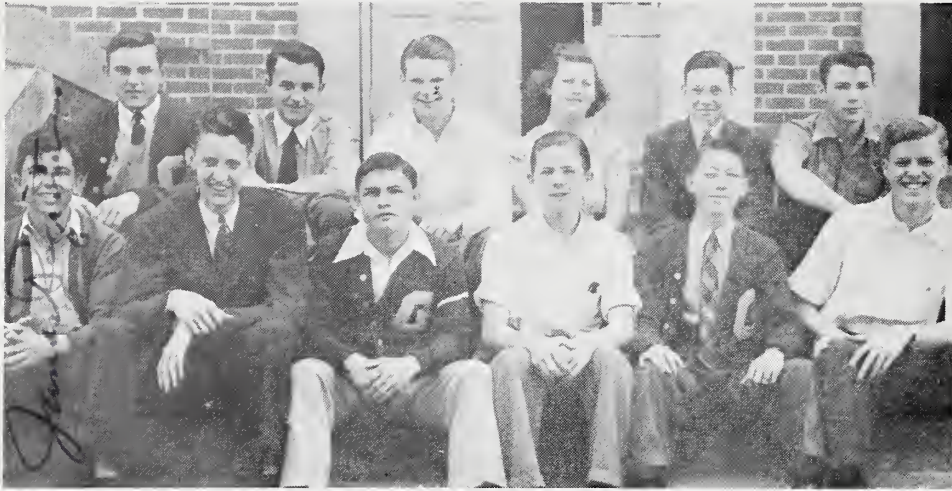

The club was organized last fall when several students and Miss Zinn evinced interest in doing Red Cross work. In addition to other activities, the members have prepared fifteen knitted garments; several are still under construction.

Marshals

Eleven Greenville high school seniors have served as marshals during the 1940-41 school year. Chosen on the basis of scholastic ability, the marshals have served as ushers at all important school functions throughout the year. Principal jobs of the marshals were serving at the graduation exercises last spring and serving at the senior play this year.

Quill and Scroll

*Best wishes to a
good winter vacation*

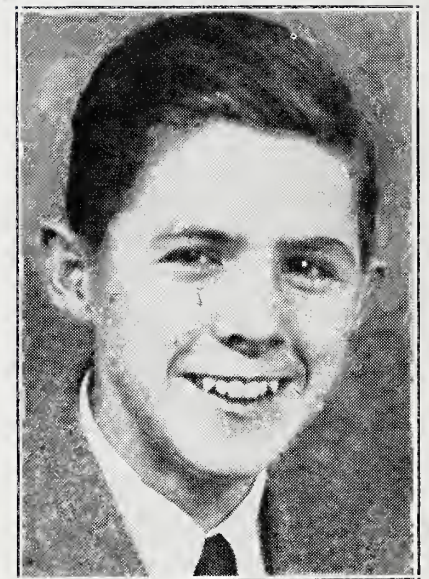

The Greenville high school chapter of Quill and Scroll, international honor society for high school journalists, now has twelve members, eleven boys and one girl. Election to Quill and Scroll is based on superior work in some phase of journalism.

Bernice Jenkins, capable editor of Green Lights, is president of Quill and Scroll. Under his leadership the school paper has become more vital as a school force than at any time during its six years of publication.

This year Green Lights was judged to be a medalist paper by the Columbia Scholastic Press Association, an All-American paper by the National Scholastic Press Association, and a first-class paper by the Southern Interscholastic Press Association. These ratings indicate the superiority of Green Lights and reflect credit on the journalism class and the entire school.

Editorials in Green Lights were declared by the CSPSA to be the best in the nation of any editorials in papers from high schools of similar enrollment to that of Greenville high.

Editor Jenkins will be succeeded next year by Jack Edwards and Bill Turner, co-editors.

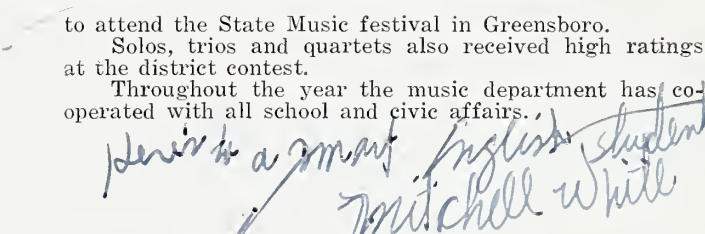

Bernice Jenkins
Editor-in-chief of Green Lights

Junior Journalists

Junior journalism was originated last year for all junior high students interested in newspaper work by Mr. Judson White. This year the group has edited Junior Highlights, a mimeograph paper, at irregular intervals. Sidney Dunn and Peggy Rose Smith are editor and associate editor, respectively.

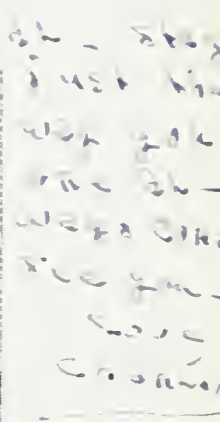

Chorus, 1

At the district contest at East Carolina Teachers college the Glee club received a one rating and was able Solos, trios and quartets also received high ratings at the district contest.

Throughout the year the music department has co-operated with all school and civic affairs.

With a rating of a two, the band received the highest grade any G. H. S. band has ever received in the Greensboro Music Festival. Several members were absent when the picture was made.

Senior Dramateers

R. G. Walser, dramatics instructor in G. H. S. and president of the North Carolina Dramatics Association.

The Dramateers, under the direction of R. G. Walser, have made great strides since the group was first organized two years ago. This year the members have spent more time in writing plays and in producing plays than in any other activity.

"Two Dicks," "The Devil Is A Good Man," "Two Against the Gods," and "The Entire Act" were outstanding among the senior dramateer productions. "The Devil Is A Good Man," senior contest play, won first place in Chapel Hill in state-wide competition, after surviving two preliminaries. This is the second year in succession that G. H. S. has won first place in state-wide competition in senior high productions.

Officers for the year were Betsy Hobgood, president; Bob Adams, vice-president; Doris H. Brown, secretary; and Jennie C. Joyner, treasurer.

Black Masquers

The Black Masquers of Greenville high school are the honor students in dramatics. Including the new students recently selected for membership, the club has twenty-two members.

Installed in Greenville high school three years ago by the Rocky Mount chapter, the local Black Masquers organization has continuously been an active one. This year the Greenville unit installed a chapter in Fayetteville. The honor students in this group produced during the year "In the Mausoleum," by Herbert Lee, president of the group, and "The Man Who Came Back."

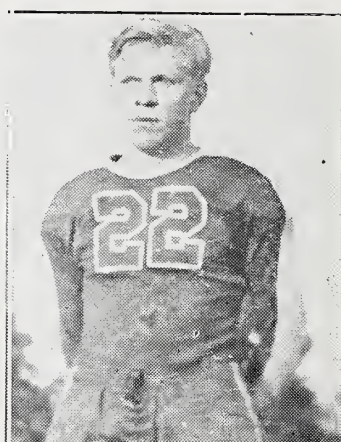

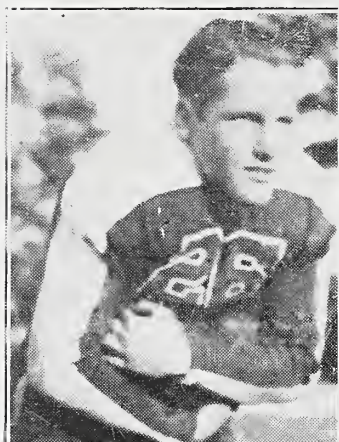

Junior Dramateers

The Junior Dramateers are ninth-grade students especially interested in dramatics. Tom Rowlette, president, and Milton Beland, vice-president, have aided Adviser R. G. Walser in making this group one of the most active in school. Besides reaching the finals in Chapel Hill with their production, "The Apothecary," the Junior Dramateers have done a number of radio programs and several assembly programs. This group meets three times each week, Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday at activity period with Mr. R. G. Walser in Room 34.

By the way, these are the Junior Dramateers. They are the ones who produced "The Apothecary" and reached the finals in Chapel Hill.

Football, 1940

Experiencing a fairly good season, the Green Phantom grid team gained a third-place standing in the Eastern conference. Coach Bo Farley and Heman Fulkerson's Greenies won five games, tied one and lost four.

Victories were recorded over Windsor, Tarboro, Plymouth, New Bern and Edenton. The tie game was with Roanoke Rapids, while losses were inflicted on the Phantoms by Kinston, Washington, Goldsboro and Elizabeth City.

J. B. Kittrell and Paul Scott were placed on several all-conference teams. Scott played guard, while Kittrell held down the quarterback position.

(Because of the fact that the cut of the football squad has been misplaced, only part of this year's squad can be shown.) Seniors graduating this year are Larry James, end; J. B. Kittrell, Jr., blocking back; Paul Scott, guard; John Collins, end; Sidney Johnson, guard; Edwin Clark, tailback; Dewey Page, fullback; Paul Britt, guard.

Phantom Basketball Squad, 1941

Coach Bo Farley's Green Phantom quint ended the year at the top of the Eastern Conference standings for the third successive year. The Phantom five won eight conference games and lost four, while losing four non-conference tilts and winning one.

Victories were recorded over Tarboro twice, Roanoke Rapids once, Washington once, Goldsboro once, Kinston twice and Elizabeth City once.

In the annual tournament held in this city, the Greenies emerged victorious by defeating Kinston in the semi-finals.

Snag Clark, Burney Warren and Larry James were named on numerous all-tournament and all-conference selections. These three boys along with John Collins, J. Hicks Corey and John Horne will be lost to next year's squad by graduation.

Girls' Basketball

Because of the large number of girls interested in basketball, Coach Mary Shaw Robeson found it impossible to practice all of them, so they were practiced in shifts. This plan proved to be very successful, considering that it was the first trial.

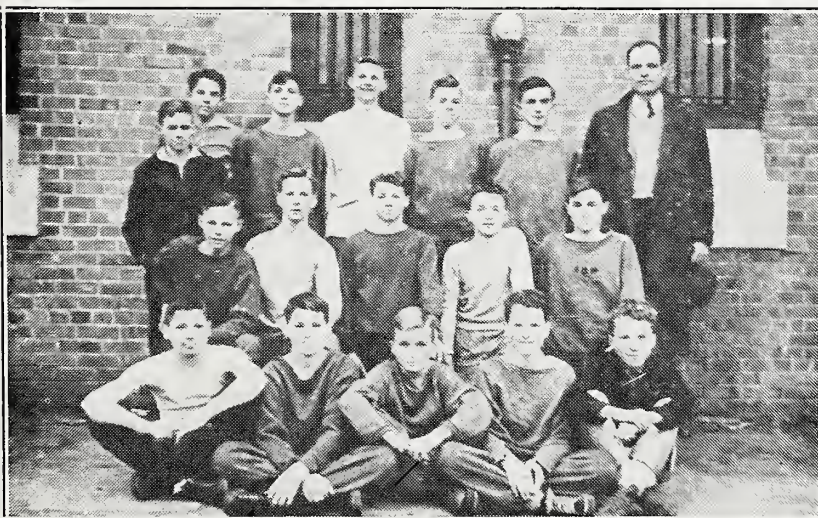

The first string, with the exception of one player, will graduate this spring. They are Betty Tyson, Joy Flanagan, Peggy West, Lib Wells, Doris Roberts and Marguerite Hudson.

Athletic Council

The two-year-old athletic council has proved its worth in arousing school spirit, handling all finances connected with sports and promoting better sportmanship in G. H. S.

It sponsored the second annual awards night at which time all athletes were honored and a speech was made by Wallace Wade, head football coach at Duke university.

The council is now a vital part of the school organization.

Junior High Basketball

The 1941 Junior high cagers, coached by Heman Fulkerson, proved to be one of the best junior teams in recent years. Victories were registered over Washington, Goldsboro, Wilson, Roanoke Rapids, Kinston, twice, and Ayden "B" team twice. The losses were to Durham twice, Wilson, Goldsboro and Washington.

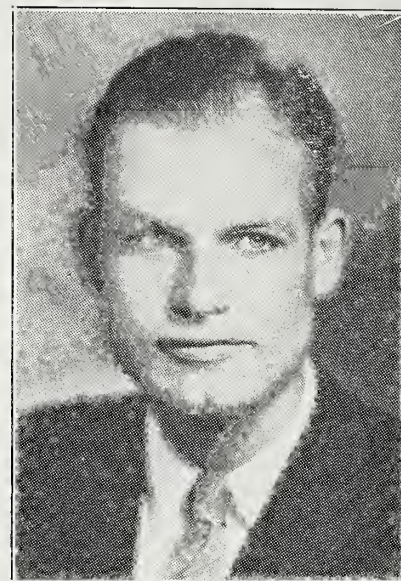

1941 Track Team

This year's track team, coached by Heman Fulkerson, ended its third successful season of competition. Coach Fulkerson's proteges won one dual meet and lost one. In an invitational meet in Goldsboro they placed second; while at the State meet in Chapel Hill they snared fifth-place honors.

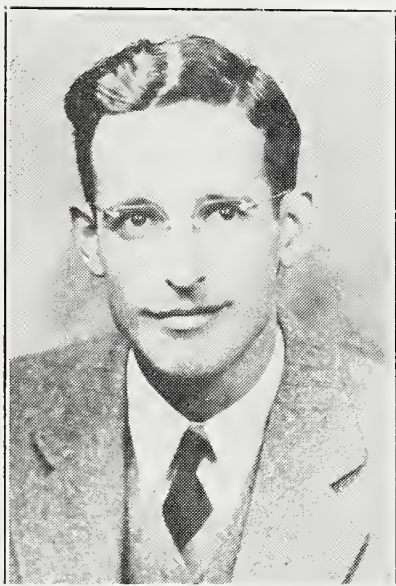

John Spearman, swift dash man, placed first in the 100 and the 220-yard dashes in the annual State meet.

In the meet sponsored in this city by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Phantom tracksters placed second. Teams competing besides Greenville were Rocky Mount, Wilson and Goldsboro.

Tennis Coach

Although the boys had an unsuccessful season as far as wins were concerned, the team proved to have a fighting spirit.

Coach H. H. Cunningham did a fine job with such limited facilities and time. This year's squad was paced by Sidney Johnson, Gene Johnson, Percy Wells, and Ben Harrison. Defeats were inflicted on the Phantoms by Wilson, Goldsboro and Kinston.

Beta Club

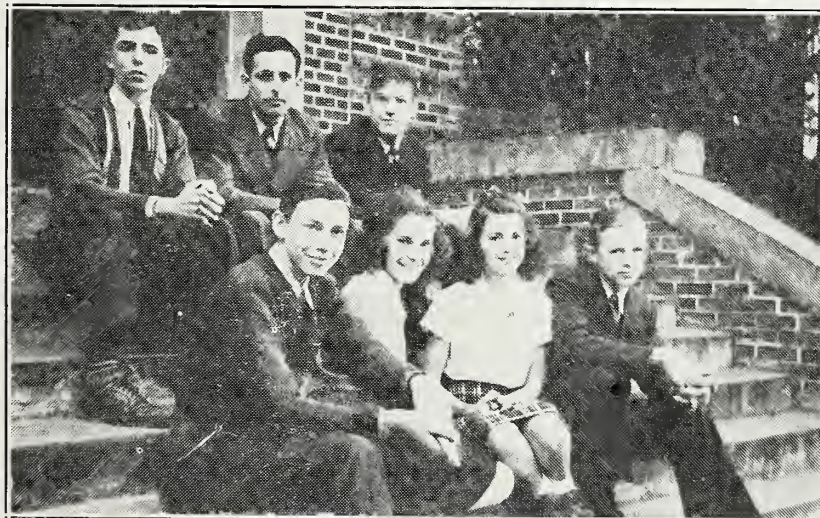

The Greenville high school chapter of the National Beta club has enjoyed another successful year under the guidance of Fenner Corbett. The main project of the club was the third annual College Day program sponsored for all junior and senior students. The club also provided food and clothing for a needy family at Christmas.

*Care you are on

Raymond Hunter*

Monogram Club

Under the leadership of President Paul Scott, the Monogram club has experienced a very successful year. The club has sponsored numerous events, but the dance honoring the football team and the Halloween dance proved to be the most outstanding events of the year.

Other officers of the club have been John Collins, vice-president and J. Hicks Corey, secretary-treasurer. Miss Mary Shaw Robeson has served as faculty adviser for the group.

Debate Club

The Greenville high school debaters, coached by Mr. H. H. Cunningham, took part in a total of ten debates during the year. Eight of these were held at the Wake Forest tournament, in which the debaters took part in several public speaking contests. The negative team composed of Bruce Mayo and James Worsley won three of their five debates, while Richard Duncan and Nick Marshall made up the local affirmative team.

Last Will and Testament

We, the inmates of Greenville High School, after five years of weary hardship and toil, being of sound mind and body, do hereby bequeath the following to our less fortunate fellow students.

Article I. To the junior class and all underclassmen, we leave an office secretary who will swallow all absence excuses.

Article II. Ann Gaskins and J. B. Kittrell leave... but not together.

Article III. Travis Flanagan leaves his Charles Atlas physique to "Blimp" Smith and Thomas Williams with several suggestions for improvement.

Article IV. To the entire student body John Collins and Ruby Taylor bequeath a book on "How To Live Alone And Like It!"

Article V. Ollie Clark leaves his undisputed title as school nuisance to the Briley Twins and John Spearman.

Article VI. Sidney Johnson leaves his dancing ability to Heber Adams, a rising star.

Article VII. To Claude Christopher, Bernice Jenkins leaves his journalistic ability and the editorship of next year's paper.

Article VIII. To H. R. Goodall, J. N Williams leaves his book on "How To Smooch Successfully."

Article IX. To Dick Hudgins, Burney Warren leaves his technique on how to hold your women!

Article X. Snag Clark leaves... Alyce Ruth Bundy, Anne Bailey Blank, Ann Hardee and numerous others—with tears in their eyes.

Article XI. Larry James leaves his athletic powers, his bathing cap and bald head to "Ikey" Saieed.

Article XII. To Eustace Conway, Edgar Denton leaves his excess supply of energy and his wonderful way with the women.

Article XIII. George Saad leaves his 14½ EE shoes and curly hair to Harvey Turnage.

Article XIV. Jennie C. Joyner and Frances Willard leave their ability to flirt to Evelyn Foley and Charlene Moyer.

Article XV. Jody Flanagan leaves Bob Adams.

Article XVI. Jane Harrison leaves Layton Clark.

Article XVII. Susie Warren, Viola Bailey, Lillian James and Edna Ross leave Paul Scott and Dewey Page to return to Stokes.

Article XVIII. To Mrs. Herring and the G. H. S. library, Lib Sugg leaves her latest novel, "How To Regain Your Lost Love."

Article XIX. C. B. Rowlette leaves R. G. Walser—without regret!

Article XX. To Morris Abeyounis, Paul Britt bequeaths his sideburns and curly hair.

Article XXI. Betsy Hobgood, Mary Sue Moore, Anna Lee Register, Fenner Corbett and Bruce Mayo leave their combined scholastic ability to Cecil Crawford and Noah Lee Edwards.

Article XXII. Herbert Lee leaves Evelyn Scheller and Audrey Lum to Wesley Johnson and Bill Turner.

Article XXIII. To Coach Bo Farley, Ann McCormick leaves her meal ticket to the Olde Towne Inn.

Article XXIV. Louise Wooten leaves Hiram Mayo of E. C. T. C. to Leah Mildred Ross.

Article XV. Jean Rush leaves... for Newport News to join Polly.

Article XXVI. Fenner Corbett leaves his studious ways to Percy Wells; his harem he leaves to "Lard" Williams and Hugh Edwards.

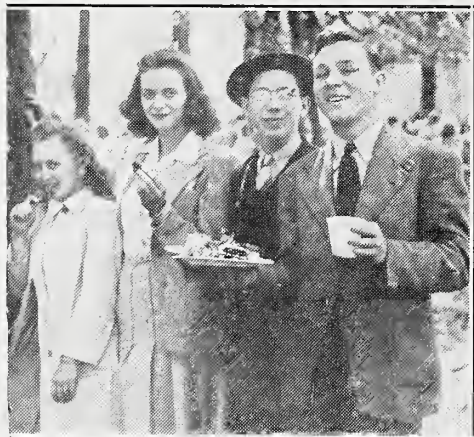

Article XVII. Emmie Lou White leaves her undisputed title as Mr. Bourne's favorite to Billy Carr and Paul Brooks.

Article XXVIII. Doris Roberts wills to Queenie McGowan her title as "Crossroads Belle."

Article XXIX. John Horne and Jane Scoville bequeath their title as perfect couple to Stuart Murphy and Margaret Savage.

Article XXX. Marguerite Hudson leaves G. H. S. for Darlington.

Article XXXI. Billy Gulley leaves.... Mr. Walser hopes

Larry is also a member of the Beta club, Quill and Scroll and the Monogram club.

Among the most outstanding juniors of this year are these popular, versatile twins—James and Leonard Briley. Above they are shown while going through their Saturday routine at Pender's. Besides being limelighted as hard workers and good students, these boys also have made quite a name for themselves in three major sports. They are especially outstanding in track and dramatics.

G. H. S. Prevaricator

As a memorial to the seniors of the 1941 class who will not graduate because of failing grades, we respectfully dedicate this feature. Among those fortunate few are Emmie Lou White, Bruce Mayo, Betsy Hobgood and Herbert Lee. We envy you, students, that you may spend another nine months in our beloved school.

Mr. J. H. Rose recently signed an agreement permitting next year's cafeteria menu to contain everything that students desire. In former years only soft drinks have been served. In keeping with the "Progressive Education for the Modern Generation" program, which will go into effect in the high school next year, a portable bar, which can be moved to the classrooms, will be installed in G. H. S. Written permission from parents must be given. Bartender Harper Darden before students may patronize the bar.

Jesse "James" Jordan has been chosen assistant librarian for the high school. Mrs. Herring expressed the specific desire that this position go to student Jordan, who has done outstanding library work throughout his school career.

A course entitled "Safe and Expert Driving" will be offered to high school students this spring through the cooperation of Jody Flanagan and Ann McCormick, outstanding school authorities on the subject. Automobiles for the lessons will be furnished by John Collins and Layton Clark, who will accompany students and instructors on all rides.

Jane Harrison has recently been initiated into the newly-organized "Man-Haters" club. Members of the club are a selected few who desire to have nothing to do with the opposite sex. Lib Sugg, president of the club, holds the club record for spurning all masculine affections for one year. "Flirts, coquettes, line-shooters and gold-diggers are entirely unwanted in our club," states Miss Sugg. Other members are Ann Gaskins, Betty Tyson, Ann McCormick and Jennie Joyner.

At a recent assembly program, Travis Flanagan was awarded a medal in recognition of his outstanding scholastic work this year. Travis has made excellent reports in all of his studies, especially typing. It has been rumored that he will give a speed-typing performance in New York City on May 30. Bashful Travis, however, says that all honors for his achievements should go to Mr. Heman Fulkerson, whose constant inspiration led him to this high record.

It has recently been disclosed that Mr. P. E. Wells, II, has opened an exclusive hairdressing shop for the fairer sex. Says Percy, "My hair is my only medium of advertising. Need I have more?"

Recently, a book entitled "Types and Uses of Profanity" was placed on the library shelves, the author remaining a mystery. Although this book was adopted by Mr. Walser as the English text for next year, no one can find who the author is. It has been said by some that J. N. Williams is responsible for this gift to grammar-lovers.

School authorities have announced that there will be no absence and tardy slips issued from the office for the remainder of this year. Passes to classes can be obtained by students from C. B. Rowlette, student representative to the faculty, for the small sum of five cents. Rowlette, who has been given this trustworthy position, was elected unanimously by the faculty upon the recommendation of Miss Dalton.

J. Hicks Corey, "G. H. S.'s" own Charles Atlas," has been decorated by the mayor for his heroic work in capturing Fenner "Culprit" Corbett, local badman. "Culprit" was captured while attempting to rob the local bank. Head Cashier Larry James was seriously injured in a grapple with Corbett. A book was said to have hit the prominent banker on the foot, after which he was rushed to the hospital, where he will be confined for five weeks. Chief-of-Police Ollie Hayes Clark is now in charge of the case.

When leaving the Roxy Theatre in New York City after the premier of his latest picture, "The Line Shooter," Sidney P. Johnson, Esq., local boy who made good, was mobbed by thousands of admiring females. Among those thrilled with only touching the movie-hero were Betty Tyson and Joy Flanagan, life-long admirers of Johnson.

Because of serious illness nationally-famous baseball pitcher, Burney Simon Warren, has cancelled his engagement at Madison Square Garden, announced Mr. Bo Farley, Warren's manager. A bumble-bee reportedly stung Warren on the arm as he journey through the country toward his destination. Farley reports that Warren will be out of the limelight for about three months due to his illness.

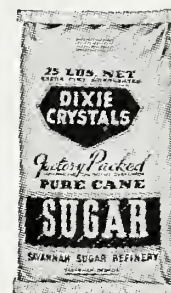

Noah Lee Edwards and Stuart Murphy have been chosen chairman and vice-chairman, respectively, of the "Go-to-church-on-Sunday" drive. This campaign is one of the most outstanding conducted this year, according to Edwards. Other outstanding promoters of the drive are Bob Adams and Jesse Jordan, who attend all services regularly.

Mrs. Maude Bowen has announced that one of her requirements for next year is that all students must chew gum in her classes. "I feel that students are more relaxed when they are chewing," stated Mrs. Bowen. She also disclosed that gum-popping contests will be conducted weekly by her classes.

A lover's lounge will be constructed behind the auditorium stage by the student council for next year's crop of lovers. In this way extra time will be spent in a worthwhile way. Mrs. Herring will excuse students from the library to participate in this new recreation. A small admission fee will be charged, this going to the well-known curtain fund. The council expects to be able to purchase five new curtains with profits from the lounge. Among the students who will welcome this venture are boys without cars. Green and white satin love seats, which can be reserved for ten dollars for the entire school year, will constitute the furnishings of the lounge. Soft lights and sweet music will furnish the appropriate setting. It is thought that physical education classes will be discontinued, since both activities cannot be conducted at the same time without interference. Faculty adviser R. G. Walser will be on hand at the lounge throughout the day to see that no interruptions occur.
